

1996 Form W-5

Department of the Treasury
Internal Revenue Service

Instructions

A Change To Note

If you expect your 1996 investment income to be more than $2,350, you cannot claim the earned income credit (EIC) for 1996. As used on this form, investment income includes taxable interest and dividends and tax-exempt interest. It also includes rental and royalty income after subtracting the total deductible related expenses. But rents and royalties received in a trade or business are not investment income.

Caution: At the time these instructions were printed, Congress was considering legislation that would change the EIC rules for 1996. If this legislation results in changes to the advance EIC rules, the IRS will issue a revised 1996 Form W-5. For information on the changes, get Pub. 553, Highlights of 1995 Tax Changes. You can get it by calling 1-800-TAX-FORM (1-800-829-3676).

Purpose

Use Form W-5 if you are eligible to get part of the EIC in advance with your pay and choose to do so. The amount you can get in advance generally depends on your wages. If you are married, the amount of your advance EIC payments also depends on whether your spouse has filed a Form W-5 with his or her employer. However, your employer cannot give you more than $1,291 throughout 1996 with your pay.

If you do not choose to get advance payments, you can still claim the EIC on your 1996 tax return.

What Is the EIC?

The EIC is a credit for certain workers. It reduces tax you owe. It may give you a refund even if you don't owe any tax. For 1996, the EIC can be as much as $2,152 if you have one qualifying child; $3,556 if you have more than one qualifying child; $323 if you don't have a qualifying child. But you cannot get advance EIC payments unless you have a qualifying child. See Who Is a Qualifying Child? on this page.

Who Is Eligible To Get Advance EIC Payments?

You are eligible to get advance EIC payments if all three of the following apply.

1. You have at least one qualifying child.
2. You expect that your 1996 earned income and adjusted gross income will each be less than $25,078. Include your spouse's income if you plan to file a joint return. As used on this form, earned income does not include amounts inmates in penal institutions are paid for their work.
3. You expect to be able to claim the EIC for 1996. To find out if you may be able to claim the EIC, answer the questions on page 2.

How Do I Get Advance EIC Payments?

If you are eligible to get advance EIC payments, fill in the Form W-5 at the bottom of this page. Then, detach it and give it to your employer. If you get advance payments, you must file a 1996 Federal income tax return.

You may have only one Form W-5 in effect with a current employer at one time. If you and your spouse are both employed, you should file separate Forms W-5.

This Form W-5 expires on December 31, 1996. If you are eligible to get advance EIC payments for 1997, you must file a new Form W-5 next year.

(TIP) You may be able to get a larger credit when you file your 1996 return. For details, see Additional Credit on page 2.

Who Is a Qualifying Child?

Any child who meets all three of the following conditions is a qualifying child.

1. The child is your son, daughter, adopted child, stepchild, foster child, or a descendant (for example, your grandchild) of your son, daughter, or adopted child.

Note: An adopted child includes a child placed with you by an authorized placement agency for legal adoption even if the adoption isn't final. A foster child is any child you cared for as your own child.

2. The child is under age 19 at the end of 1996, or under age 24 at the end of 1996 and a full-time student, or any age at the end of 1996 and permanently and totally disabled.

3. The child lives with you in the United States for over half of 1996 (for all of 1996 if a foster child). If the child does not live with you for the required time because the child was born or died in 1996, the child is considered to have lived with you for all of 1996 if your home was the child's home for the entire time he or she was alive in 1996.

Note: Temporary absences such as for school, medical care, or vacation count as time lived at home. Members of the military on extended active duty outside the United States are considered to be living in the United States.

Married child.—If the child is married at the end of 1996, that child is a qualifying child only if you may claim him or her as your dependent, or the following Exception applies to you.

Exception. You are the custodial parent and would be able to claim the child as your dependent, but the noncustodial parent claims the child as a dependent because—

1. You signed Form 8332, Release of Claim to Exemption for Child of Divorced

Questions To See if You May Be Able To Claim the EIC for 1996

Caution: You cannot claim the EIC if you plan to file either Form 2555 or Form 2555-EZ (relating to foreign earned income) for 1996. You also cannot claim the EIC if you are a nonresident alien for any part of 1996 unless you are married to a U.S. citizen or resident and elect to be taxed as a resident alien for all of 1996.

1 Do you have a qualifying child? Read Who Is a Qualifying Child? on page 1 before you answer this question. If the child is married, be sure you also read Married child on page 1.

- No. Stop. You may be able to claim the EIC but you cannot get advance EIC payments.
 Yes. Go to question 2.

Caution: If the child is a qualifying child for both you and another person, the child is your qualifying child only if you expect your 1996 adjusted gross income to be higher than the other person's adjusted gross income. If the other person is your spouse and you expect to file a joint return for 1996, this rule doesn't apply.

2 Do you expect your 1996 filing status to be Married filing a separate return?

- Yes. Stop. You cannot claim the EIC.
 No. Go to question 3.

(TIP) If you expect to file a joint return for 1996, include your spouse's income when answering questions 3 and 4.

3 Do you expect that your 1996 earned income and adjusted gross income will each be less than $25,078 (less than $28,495 if you have more than one qualifying child)? To find out what is included in adjusted gross income, you can look at page 1 of your 1995 tax return (Form 1040EZ, Form 1040A, etc.).

- No. Stop. You cannot claim the EIC.
 Yes. Go to question 4. But remember, you cannot get advance EIC payments if you think your 1996 earned income or adjusted gross income will be $25,078 or more.

4 Do you expect that your 1996 investment income (defined on page 1) will be more than $2,350?

- Yes. Stop. You cannot claim the EIC.
 No. Go to question 5.

5 Do you expect to be a qualifying child of another person for 1996?

- No. You may be able to claim the EIC.
 Yes. You cannot claim the EIC.

or Separated Parents, or a similar statement, agreeing not to claim the child for 1996, or

2. You have a pre-1985 divorce decree or separation agreement that allows the noncustodial parent to claim the child and he or she gives at least $600 for the child's support in 1996.

Qualifying child of more than one person.—If the child is a qualifying child of more than one person, only the person with the highest adjusted gross income for 1996 may treat that child as a qualifying child. If the other person is your spouse and you plan to file a joint return for 1996, this rule doesn't apply.

Reminder.—You must get a social security number for a qualifying child unless the child was born after November 30, 1996.

What If My Situation Changes?

If your situation changes after you give Form W-5 to your employer, you will probably need to file a new Form W-5. For example, you should file a new Form W-5 if any of the following applies for 1996.

- You no longer have a qualifying child. Check "No" on line 2 of your new Form W-5.
- You no longer expect to be able to claim the EIC for 1996. Check "No" on line 1 of your new Form W-5.

- You no longer want advance payments. Check "No" on line 1 of your new Form W-5.

- Your spouse files Form W-5 with his or her employer. Check "Yes" on line 4 of your new Form W-5.

Note: If you get the EIC with your pay and find you are not eligible, you must pay it back when you file your 1996 Federal income tax return.

Additional Information

How To Claim the EIC

If you are eligible, claim the EIC on your 1996 tax return. See your 1996 instruction booklet.

Additional Credit

You may be able to claim a larger credit when you file your 1996 tax return because your employer cannot give you more than $1,291 of the EIC throughout the year with your pay. You may also be able to claim a larger credit if you have more than one qualifying child. But you must file your 1996 tax return to claim any additional credit.
